Rebecca Richman has been fiddling since she was old enough to hold the instrument (a long time). Now living in Santa Rosa, Rebecca has explored numerous styles of music, including some formal training at Mills College in Oakland. But her main emphasis has been on the music of Scotland and Ireland. Several years ago, she immersed herself into the deep pool of traditional Appalachian fiddling. After several visits to that region, especially the famous fiddle camp in Cliff Top, West Virginia, she now brings a refreshing perspective to the old tunes. Her workshop will focus on some of these tunes and the techniques to play them.
